ECHOES THROUGH THE HALLS OF . . .

Have you ever stood alone inside the Halls of Coopers just as evening turned into night and heard the echoes? They begin softly at first, barely audible, as if smothered by the deepening shadows, and gain in momentum until the halls are filled with their volume. If you stand listening long enough, the confusing sounds will take on meaning and you can distinguish a laugh, a sigh, or any of a million emotions that have been expressed within these halls. We have captured just a few of these memories and emotions and put them on the pages of the 1963 COHISAN. Treasure this book, for it holds a part of our lives--our lives at Coopers.

DEDICATION

For her genuine concern for all those interested in learning; for her eagerness to help wherever needed; for her attempt to understand us as seniors; for her active work as sponsor of the Journalism Club; for her co-operation with us in solving our problems; for her interest in the betterment of our school; for her influence upon the student council; for her interest in trying to bring out the best in her students; we, the senior class of 1963, wish to dedicate this COHISAN to Mrs. Dorothy C. Hodges as a symbol of this thankfulness and gratitude toward her.

DEDICATION

For her ability to accomplish what she sets out to do; for her never-ending enthusiasm "to complete the work of three ordinary women"; for her interest in learning to understand teenagers; for her devotion to her work as a teacher; for her pleasant sense of humor; for her determination to up-hold a good reputation for our school; for her never-to-be-forgotten work as sponsor of our COHISAN; the seniors of 1963 take great pride in dedicating this COHISAN to Mrs. Ruth B. Christie as a means of expressing our thanks and appreciation to her.

PRINCIPAL'S MESSAGE

At the close of this school year, I would like to wish the graduating class the greatest success and happiness possible. The opportunity to work with the students, faculty, and parents has meant a great deal. The efforts of the annual staff, their sponsor, and the senior class have been fulfilled with vigor and determination. Such efforts merit bountiful rewards. It is sincerely desired that the accomplishments of the student body in past years will enable them to achieve individual happiness and display effective citizenship at the fullest.

We returned to Coopers for our last year, strangely aware of the fact that we were now seniors. Behind us were three joyful and tearful years of learning and growing, exuberance and meditation, happiness and sorrow, and unforgettable experiences. We held our heads higher than before, aware of a new maturity, but still unsure as to how to use it.

As the year progressed, plans were made for the future which suddenly seemed very near and strange. Rings were exchanged, letters were written and mailed to colleges, and jobs were searched for and finally found just as spring came with its plans for graduation.

The year seemed short to most of us, for we packed it full of laughter and endless activity, never forgetting that this would be our last chance to share our lives with Coopers.

At last the time came for us to leave. As we turned to look behind us, we caught a glimpse of a water tower, a giant oak tree surrounded by happy students, and the long, low building that was Coopers, standing there holding the memories of twelve years of our lives. We took a mental snapshot of these things and, tucking it down into a small corner of our hearts, turned toward a new life.

HISTORY

In the year 1959 approximately fifty students locked horns to begin four years of high school and four years of hard work. Those years have been eventful ones.

On the national scene in 1960, John F. Kennedy defeated Richard M. Nixon at the voting polls for the position as president of our United States. In May, 1961, Alan Shepherd was the first man to attempt a ride in a rocket into outer space. In the latter part of the winter season, 1962, John Glenn made and broke that record by traveling around the world three times in a rocket.

We glance back over the years and remember the work we have put into our high school days. We like to think that we've all done our best; that we've accomplished a great deal; that we've worked to the fullest extent to prepare ourselves for the future.

Things have changed in the past four years. We have grown a little more mature since 1959. We have learned to face reality and accept responsibility as a great part of this growing up. Most of us have become interested in the opposite sex at some time or another during these years. We have fallen in love, then out again. These things have been a part of growing up. It has helped us to face life with its inevitable problems, its laughter, its tears, and the disappointments.

We have lost some of our high school friends during these four years. Some of them are married with a family; some have moved away; others are working. Whatever their importance in life, each has to face life bravely. They have already experienced the first moments of facing life alone; we are soon to know. We will make our adjustments to life, and we will fight a good battle.

CLASS POEM

THE TIME HAS COME

The time has come; the hour is here,
For departing our own separate ways;
Each moment spent will forever remain,
As memories of our school days.

There have been many joyful moments;
The sad ones we'll eventually forget,
But it's all been such a pleasure,
Especially the friends we've met.

It's a fact; we've made our mistakes,
Probably more than our share,
But from them we'll surely profit,
And in our future take special care.

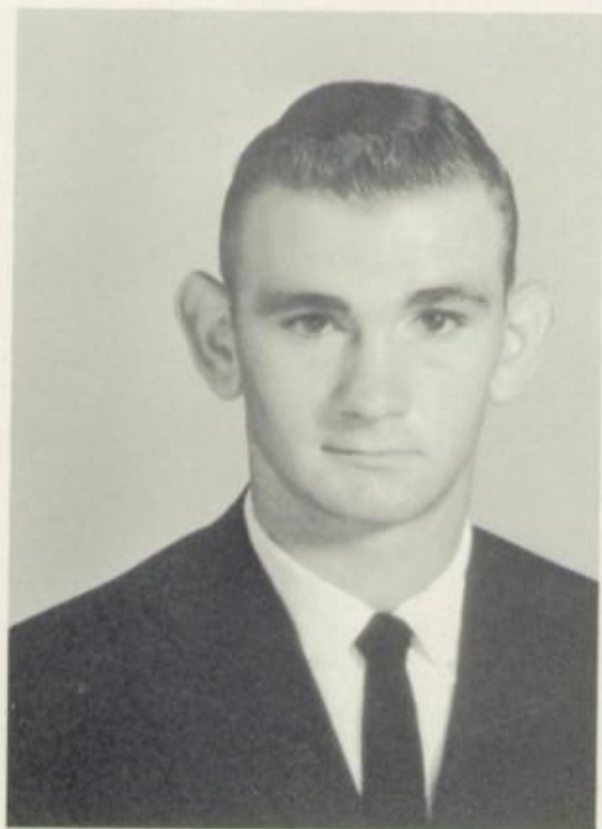

As we retrace the hands of time,
We remember the beginning of school,
And I suppose it's undoubtedly true,
We've all disobeyed some rule.

Now, as we approach the crossroads,
The turning point in our lives,
May each of us choose the right way,
And may God be our Guide.

Suddenly it was August, and the class of '64 returned to Coopers with happy memories of an all-too-short summer. But the thoughts of carefree days were soon shattered, as the juniors ran head-on into their busiest high school years. No sooner had they settled down to the steady drone of teachers' voices, than they found themselves up and scattered over the countryside knocking on doors and smiling into strangers' faces as they told of the advantages in buying their magazines. The class finally collected $490.00 and tucked it away for future use.

With the magazine sales only a few days behind them, the students began work on the annual Halloween Carnival, sponsored each year by the junior class. It was a lot of work, but wasn't it fun; and the juniors came out of this one with more dollars to their credit.

Finally, all the efforts of the class were compiled in the biggest project of the year--the Junior-Senior. Never would it be forgotten, for they would never share another experience like this one, nor would they share another year like this, for this was their junior year.

Packed school busses crawling slowly, yet ceaselessly, across the countryside brought the sophomores back to Coopers. With them came a new assurance, for gone was their "green" freshman year, and they now knew the routine of high school life. Possibly, they were a little inclined to look down on the freshmen because that part of their life was in the past.

As underclassmen, they had no desire to think about anything serious; instead they anticipated an active part in the social life of being a high school student. They worked together and shared together the good times, as well as the bad times. Each helped the other willingly to overcome his shortcomings and his problems, and thus a life-long friendship was created.

As the year came rapidly to a close, the sophomores gave careful thought to the year just gone by. They thought about the accomplishments they had made that year; the many lessons they had learned--some even the hard way through experience; and everyone agreed that it had been a fruitful year. They heaved a sigh and vowed that the coming year would be even more so.

The end of August brought an expectant and slightly nervous freshmen class into the halls of Coopers. Hordes of boys and girls rushed frantically from one end of the high school building to the other, trying to learn at once, everything about their new environment. To the sound of high-pitched bells and teachers' voices, they began their high school years.

In almost no time at all, these students had become accustomed to their new "life". Each day brought a new excitement for them; each day a new goal was erected, and each worked individually to reach that goal. It was a year of learning the basic principles which they would apply to the greater things later in their future. It was a year of adjusting themselves to four years of hard work which would pay great dividends in the end. The days were full of laughter, and a table of giggling girls in the lunchroom was not extraordinary.

Everyone seemed so old and experienced, but it was a comforting thought to think that eventually they, too, would become experienced. However, at times, they displayed a feeling of envy because of the privileges granted to seniors.

The eager anticipation of becoming sophomores the coming year, and leaving their "green" freshman year behind them, was a great contribution to the feelings of a freshman toward the end of the year.

The closing weeks of a busy summer suggested the beginning of a new school year for the junior-high students. The ringing of the first bell symbolized a year ahead of hard work, but also one of sharing responsibilities together as a group.

An extreme change was made in the school life of the seventh and eighth grade students this year. This change included a junior-high basketball team of their own. They even changed classes just like high school, and that made them hold their proud heads high. But even this change did not quench the eagerness of looking forward to high school life.

The purpose of the Journalism Club is to publish the school paper, THE BULLDOG. Every student in the club is a member of the staff and has a definite responsibility. These responsibilities include gathering and writing news correctly, laying-out the paper, printing and assembling the paper, and financing and distributing the publication. THE BULLDOG provides a vehicle for self-expression through poetry, essays, short stories, and straight news reporting, as well as giving students an opportunity to practice language and typing skills learned in the classroom.

The Monogram Club is composed of all students who have earned a letter by participation in sports or cheer-leading. As members they have an interest in bettering the sports program of their school as well as improving sportsmanship among each other. The club should uphold high ideals and always strive to make them better.

MONOGRAM CLUB

FUTURE HOMEMAKERS OF AMERICA

The North Carolina Association of Future Homemakers of America has eight purposes. They are:

1. To promote growing appreciation of the joys and satisfactions of homemaking.
2. To emphasize the importance of worthy home membership.
3. To encourage democracy in home and community life.
4. To work for good home and family life for all.
5. To promote international good will.
6. To foster the development of creative leadership in home and community life.
7. To provide wholesome individual and group recreation.
8. To further interest in home economics.

OFFICERS

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

The Future Farmers of America is an intra-curricular activity having its origin and root in a definite part of the school curriculum--vocational agriculture. Among other things, members learn through active participation how to conduct and take part in a public meeting; to speak in public; to buy and sell co-operatively; to solve their own problems; to finance themselves; and to assume civic responsibility. The foundation upon which the F. F. A. organization is built, includes leadership and character development, sportsmanship, cooperation, service, thrift, scholarship, improved agriculture, organized recreation, citizenship and patriotism.

OFFICERS

Larry Joyner, Mr. Cuyler Best--Advisor, Bennie Vester, Terry Tyson, Reece Turner, Royce Bone, David Williams

ART CLUB

The Art Club at Coopers High School exists to foster interest in the fine arts. It strives to encourage those individuals who possess natural gifts and talents to increase their knowledge and skill in executing these talents. For those who feel they are without ability, the club wishes to impart a love and appreciation for great art.
